Run the party

8 games that need nothing you can't find in a kitchen drawer

1 Mummy wrap

Teams of 2 or 3. One person is the mummy; the others wrap them in toilet roll. 2 minutes. Best mummy wins (the grown-up judges). 1 roll per team.

2 Monster freeze

Play music and everyone dances like a monster. When it stops, freeze. Anyone who moves becomes a judge. Last monster dancing wins.

3 Pass the pumpkin

Players stand in a line and pass an orange (or small pumpkin) using only their chins and necks. Drop it and it goes back to the start.

4 Witch's broom relay

Two teams, two brooms. Ride the broom to a chair and back, then hand it on. First team home wins.

5 Feely boxes

Blindfold, then guess: peeled grapes (eyeballs), cold cooked spaghetti (worms), a wet sponge (brains), jelly (slime). Use a bowl and a tea towel over the top.

6 Spider's web

Wind wool round chair legs across a room. Hide a sweet at the end of each strand. Each child untangles their own strand to find the treat.

7 Doughnut challenge

Hang ring doughnuts on string from a broom handle held by two grown-ups. Eat one without using your hands.

8 Ghost in the graveyard

Hide and seek in the dark garden with torches. The ghost hides; when found, they shout 'Ghost in the graveyard!' and everyone runs home.

Safety: keep an eye on little ones with string and wool, use torches not candles in pumpkins near costumes, and check for food allergies before the feely boxes and doughnuts.

Trick-or-treat tips for grown-ups

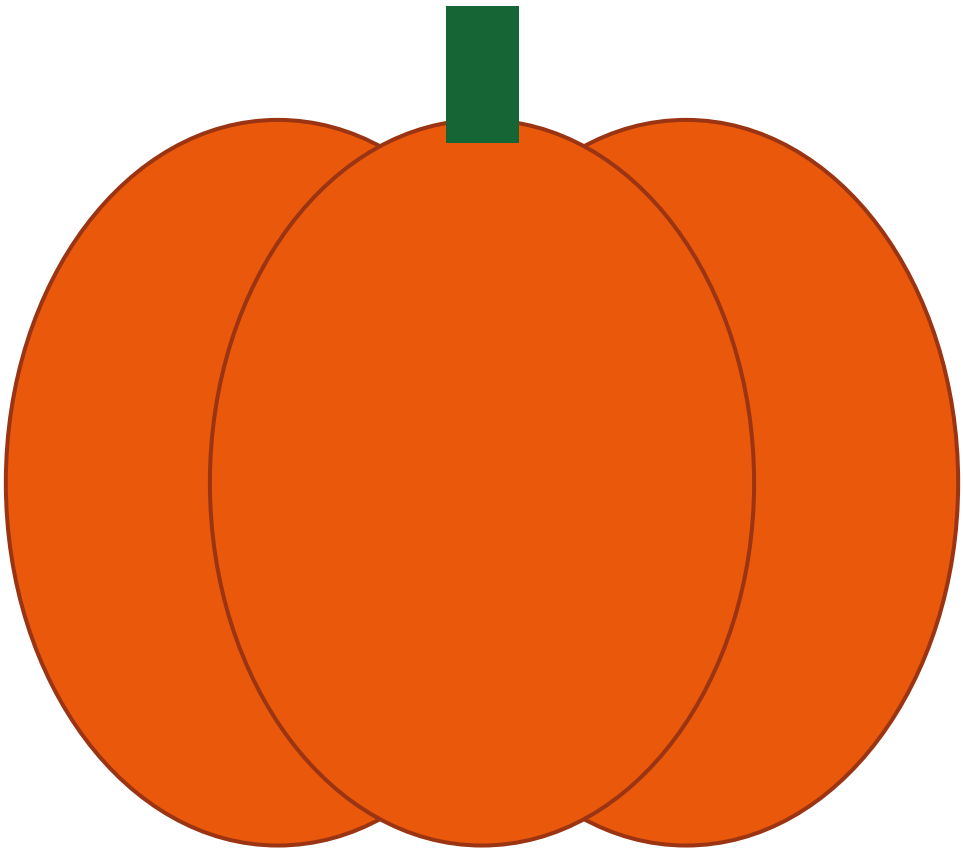

· Only knock where there's a pumpkin or decorations out: that's the UK sign a house is happy to have visitors.

· Carry a torch, add something bright or reflective to dark costumes, and keep to your own streets.

· Check sweets at home before eating them.

Design your pumpkin

Draw your face here first, then copy it onto the real thing (grown-ups do the carving)

Tip: draw on the pumpkin with a felt pen first, then carve along the lines with a small serrated knife.
