

UK Ltd AI Admin Prompt Pack

Invoice chasing, waiting-on lists, meeting actions and a Monday skim for UK directors.

What's inside

• How to use the pack	p.2
• Company context block	p.3
• Invoice chasing	p.4
• Waiting-on list	p.5
• Meetings into actions	p.6
• Monday skim and Friday shutdown	p.7
• Business emails	p.8
• Quick index	p.9

How to use it

1. Fill the company context block once and keep it in your notes.
2. Paste it at the top of a new chat, then paste one prompt.
3. Swap every [square bracket] for real facts. Unknown means 'unknown'.
4. Read every draft before it goes. You're the director; the AI is the clerk.

Print it or type into it

Print at 100% on A4, or copy prompts straight from the PDF. Works with ChatGPT, Claude, Gemini or Copilot. Not legal, tax or financial advice: you check and send every draft.

Job	Usually	With the pack
Chasing an overdue invoice	15 min	3 min
Turning meeting notes into actions	30 min	5 min
Monday 'what's on fire' review	45 min	10 min
A tricky customer reply	20 min	5 min

Fill once. Paste at the top of every chat.

Invoice chasing

B1 First reminder

You're my UK business admin assistant. Use only these facts.

FACTS (use only these):

Customer: [] Contact: []

Invoice: [number] Amount: £[] [inc / ex VAT]

Issued: [date] Due: [date] Days overdue: []

What already happened: [e.g. emailed on ...]

Write a short reminder email (under 120 words) with a subject line. Friendly, one clear ask: the payment date. No threats.

B2 Second reminder

FACTS (use only these):

Customer: [] Contact: []

Invoice: [number] Amount: £[] [inc / ex VAT]

Issued: [date] Due: [date] Days overdue: []

What already happened: [e.g. emailed on ...]

They've had one reminder. Write a firm, professional email (under 140 words). State the amount and due date once. Ask for a payment date this week or the reason in writing.

B3 Final reminder

FACTS (use only these):

Customer: [] Contact: []

Invoice: [number] Amount: £[] [inc / ex VAT]

Issued: [date] Due: [date] Days overdue: []

What already happened: [e.g. emailed on ...]

Previous reminders: [dates]. Our real next step if unpaid: [e.g. stop supply / pass to collections / none].

Write a final, factual email (under 160 words). Only mention the next step I've given. Don't invent fees or legal claims.

B4 Plan reminders for a list

Turn this list of unpaid invoices into a table: Invoice | Customer | Amount | Due | Days overdue | Next reminder (first / second / final) | Send by. Use only the rows I paste.

[paste list]

Notes

Everything you're waiting on other people for.

From my rough notes, make a table: Item | Waiting on | Since | Chase on | Status. Don't add anything that isn't in my notes. If a date is missing, write 'unknown'.
[paste notes]

Write a short, warm chase email (under 100 words) for this item. UK business tone, one clear ask.
Item: [] Waiting on: [] Since: []
[paste context block]

Here's my waiting-on list and today's updates. Mark each row OPEN, CHASE or DONE, and give me one line on what to do next for each CHASE row.

Updates: [paste]

D1 Notes into decisions and actions

Notes: [paste]

From: [name], [company]

[paste notes]

E1 Monday skim

[paste bank notes, invoice list, diary, waiting-on]

[paste notes]

Good manners for business email: contact people at companies where your offer is relevant, say clearly who you are, and include a simple way to opt out. Don't use bought lists of personal email addresses. If in doubt, take advice.

Write a short email (under 110 words) to an existing customer about [offer / update]. Mention how we know each other: [relationship]. End with 'If you'd rather not hear from us about this, just reply STOP.'

Write a first email (under 90 words) to [company] about [service]. Say why it's relevant to them: [reason]. One piece of proof: [proof]. One question. Include an opt-out line.

Reply to this customer email. Calm, accountable, UK English, no blame. One clear next step.
