

UK Ltd AI Admin Prompt Pack

TCH Works · Instant PDF · UK directors & SMEs

Original prompts · ChatGPT / Claude / Gemini · UK English

Version 2026-09-17

Sections A–G · Invoice chase · Waiting-on · Meetings · Weekly skim · PECR-aware drafts

Personal use by the purchasing Ltd · No resale of prompt text

A. How to use (1 page)

1. Fill Section G once (company context). Paste it at the top of every chat.
2. Copy one prompt from B–F. Replace [SQUARE BRACKETS] with your facts only.
3. Rule for the model (always include): Never invent invoice numbers, amounts, dates, names, or legal claims. If a fact is missing, ask one clarifying question.
4. Edit the draft like a human before you send. You are the director; the model is a clerk.
5. Works with ChatGPT, Claude, Gemini, or local models — model-agnostic.

Tone presets you can name in prompts: plain · firm · warm · short.

B. Invoice chase (2 pages)

B1 — Polite first chase

You are my UK business admin assistant. Use only the facts below. Never invent amounts, dates, or in

FACTS:

Company: [YOUR LTD NAME]

My name/role: [NAME], [ROLE]

Customer: [CUSTOMER LTD / NAME]

Invoice number: [INV-XXX]

Amount (inc/ex VAT as labelled): [£AMOUNT] [inc VAT / ex VAT]

Issue date: [YYYY-MM-DD]

Due date: [YYYY-MM-DD]

Days overdue: [N] (or "not yet due – courtesy")

Payment details: [BANK / LINK – only if real]

What already happened: [e.g. invoice emailed on ...]

TASK: Write a short email (max 120 words) chasing payment. Subject line + body. No threats. One clear

B2 — Firm second chase

Same rules as B1. Tone: firm, still professional. Assume they had the polite chase already.

FACTS: [paste same block + date of first chase]

TASK: Email (max 140 words). State the overdue amount and due date once. Ask for payment date this week

B3 — Final chase before escalation

Same rules. Tone: final notice, factual. Do not invent late fees or legal consequences we did not send

FACTS: [block] + prior chase dates: [DATES]

Escalation we will actually do if unpaid: [e.g. pause work / pass to bookkeeper / statutory demand –

TASK: Email (max 160 words). Clear final ask. Optional one sentence on next step IF we named a real

B4 — Overdue ladder planner

Turn this invoice list into a chase ladder table. Columns: Invoice | Customer | Amount | Due | Days

LIST:

[paste invoices]

C. Waiting-on tracker (2 pages)

C1 — Messy notes → chase table

You are my UK Ltd admin assistant. Extract a waiting-on table from my rough notes. Columns:
Item | W

NOTES:
[paste]

C2 — One chase email from a row

Draft a PECR-aware B2B chase email for this waiting-on row. Warm but short. Max 100 words. UK
Englis

ROW:
[paste one table row]
My context: [Section G]

C3 — Close the loop

Given this waiting-on list and today's updates, mark each row: OPEN / CHASE / DONE. Suggest one sent

LIST + UPDATES:
[paste]

D. Meeting notes → actions (2 pages)

D1 — Notes → decisions, owners, deadlines

Convert these rough meeting notes into:

- 1) Decisions (bullets)
- 2) Actions table: Action | Owner | Deadline | Blocked by
- 3) Open questions

UK English. Never invent owners or deadlines – use UNKNOWN if missing. Flag anything that sounds lik

NOTES:

[paste]

Attendees: [names]

Date: [YYYY-MM-DD]

D2 — PECR-safe follow-up email

Write one follow-up email to attendees summarising decisions and actions. B2B. Max 180 words.
No mar

STRUCTURED NOTES:

[paste D1 output]

From: [NAME], [LTD]

D3 — Board / investor skim (optional)

Compress the meeting into 5 bullets a busy director can read in 60 seconds: outcome, money, risk, de

E. Weekly director skim (2 pages)

E1 — Monday 20-minute skim

You are my UK Ltd weekly ops clerk. Using ONLY the pasted facts, produce a Monday skim:

- 1) Cash pulse (one paragraph – only if figures given)
- 2) Invoices: overdue / due this week / to raise
- 3) Waiting-on (top 5)
- 4) Calendar must-not-miss (this week)
- 5) One MUST DECIDE this week (single question)
- 6) Suggested 3 admin blocks (25 min each)

If a section lacks data, write NEED INPUT – do not invent numbers.

FACTS:

[paste bank notes / invoice export / calendar / waiting-on]

E2 — Friday shutdown

From this week's notes, list: finished, still open, park until Monday, hand to bookkeeper. Max one p

F. PECR-safe email drafts (2 pages)

Hygiene (read once): For B2B, prefer contacting corporate addresses about relevant products/services. Identify your Ltd clearly. Include a simple stop: "If you'd rather not hear from us, reply STOP." Do not scrape bought consumer lists. When unsure, ask your solicitor.

F1 — Warm B2B (existing relationship)

Draft a short B2B email to an existing contact. Not a cold blast. Max 110 words. UK English. Include

FACTS: [relationship + offer + my Ltd]

F2 — Cold B2B (careful)

Draft a first-touch B2B email to a company about a relevant service. Max 90 words. Plain English. On

FACTS: [their company + why relevant + my offer + proof]

F3 — Customer service reply

Reply to this customer email. Tone: calm, accountable. UK English. No blame. Offer one clear next st

CUSTOMER EMAIL:

[paste]

POLICY / FACTS WE CAN USE:

[paste]

F4 — Subject lines (non-spammy)

Propose 8 subject lines for the email below. No ALL CAPS, no fake Re:/Fwd:, no "ACT NOW". UK English

EMAIL BODY:

[paste]

G. Fill-in context block (1 page)

Paste this at the top of every new chat:

CONTEXT – FACTS ONLY (do not invent beyond this):

Trading name: []

Legal entity: [] Ltd

Companies House number (optional): []

My name: []

Role: [Director / Ops / ...]

Sector: []

Usual tone: [plain / firm / warm / short]

VAT registered: [yes/no]

Currency: GBP

Markets: UK B2B [/ also ...]

Things we never claim: [e.g. regulated advice]

Preferred sign-off: []

Bank/payment line for invoices (if needed): []

Quick index

First invoice chase — B1

Second / final chase — B2 / B3

Chase plan — B4

Chaos → waiting-on table — C1

Chase one row — C2

Meeting → actions — D1

Meeting follow-up email — D2

Monday skim — E1

Friday shutdown — E2

Warm / cold / service email — F1 / F2 / F3

— End of pack —

© 2026 TCH Works · Ryan Wilson · England and Wales · For personal use by the purchasing Ltd only · No resale of the prompt text